MONDAY..... DECEMBER 8, 1879. HANCHESTER AND VICINITY.

County Court.—The December term of the Chestesfield County Court commences this morning. The civil docket is quite small, but there are several criminal cases on docket. The trial of George Washington (colored), for house-breaking, burglary, and arson, is the most important one on docket.

The Last Musicale.—An account of the inclemency of the weather Friday there was no musicale at Bestboven Hall. Some few persons were present, however, and the Programme made its second appearance. James A. Gentry, Esq., is the associate editor of the Programme, which is the musical organ of Manchester.

Improvement.-City-Engineer Lipscomb has had a force at work during the past week gravelling Perry street between Cowardin avenue and Seventh street. This improvement was much needed, and will prove a great help to citizens this winter who reside in that neighborhood. Several streets in other parts of the city have had granite chippings placed on the sidewalks. If gravel were placed on the chippings it would make a fine walkway.

Roll of Honor .- The following is the roll of honor at the Colored High School for the week ending Friday : Jessie C. Binga, Mary Q. Harris, Alexander Johnson, Han-nah Wilkerson, Thomas Brown, William Goode, Thomas Gray, Thomas Johnson, James Robinson, Angie Epps, David Moon, James Powell. Horace Jackson.

Brief Items .- The attendance at the City Council Friday night was very good. Three members only were absent. If the councilmen who have been absent since the resolution imposing a fine of $10 for non-attendance of meetings was passed would come forward and pay their fines the city treasury would have about $200 additional Several divorce suits are engaging the at-

If their fines are paid, several prisoners will be released from the city jail this week. An interesting question in criminal law was raised by a recent trial in England. A man and his wife, after trying for eight days in vain to drown their sorrows in whiskey, agreed to drown themselves in water. With this laudable purpose in view, they threw themselves together into the mit suicide or perish in the attempt, succeeded in accomplishing his purpose, and was drowned. But the wife was not so fortunate. She escaped death only to be tried for her life in a court of law. She was charged with the murder of her husband, on the ground that she had consented to his killing himself. The Lord Chief-Justice charged the inry that if two persons agreed. river. The husband firmly resolved to comcharged the jury that if two persons agreed to commit suicide and only one of them succeeded, the survivor was guilty of murder. The jury, however, found that after eight days of earnest drinking the parties to the agreement were not capable of forming a definite intention to commit suicide, and accordingly acquitted the woman. This was not a novel case. A similar one occurred as early as the reign of James I. A husband having said to his of James I. A husband having said to his wife that he was weary of life and would kill himself, she replied that if he did she would also. He thereupon got some poison and mixed it with a drink, of which they both partook. The busband died, but the wife saved her life by taking an antidote. She was afterward tried for murder, but was acquitted on the ground that being the wife of the deceased she was not a free agent, but had acted under his control. Another case of this kind was tried at the Old Bailey in 1823. A man and a woman who had been living together, but were not married. would also. He thereupon got some poison ing together, but were not married, agreed to destroy themselves, and went one possession given soon. Apply to W. GODDIN night to the Thames for that purpose. How she came to her death was a matter of dispute. The indictment charged the prisoner with baying thrown her into the river. But there was some evidence showing that she had accidentally fallen into the water, and that he had plunged in for the purpose of rescuing her. The jury found that both had gone to the river for the purpose of drowning themselves, and returned a verdict of guilty. The case was afterward considered by the Law Judges, who held that "if the deceased threw herself into the water by the encouragement of the prisoner, and because she thought he had set her the example, in pursuance of their previous agreement, he was a principal in the second degree, and was guilty of murder; but as it was doubeful whether the deceased did not fall in by accident, it was not murder in either of them." The prisoner was thereupon recommended for pardon. Still

The biggest ferry-boat in the world made its trial trip in California twelve days ago. The Solano was built for the transportation of passenger- and freight-cars across the Straits of Carquinez from Port Costa to Benicia. Her dimensions are: Length over all, 424 feet; length on bottom (she has no keel), 406 feet; height of sides in centre, 18 feet 5 inches; beight of sides at each end from bottom of boat, 15 feet 10 inches; moulded beam, 64 feet; extreme width over guards, 116 feet; width of guards at centre of boat, 25 feet 10 inches; reverse shear of deck, 2½ feet. She has two vertical-beam engines of 60-inch bore and 11-inch stroke, built at Wilmington, Del. The engines have a nominal horse-power of 1,500 horses each, but are capable of being worked up to 2,000 horse-power each. Upon the deck of the Solano ere four tracks extending her entire length, with a capacity for carrying forty-eight loaded freight-cars, or twenty-four passenger-coaches of the largest class. The rudders are worked by an hydraulic steering-gear, operated by an inde-pendent steam-pump. These rudders are connected with the ordinary steering-gear, so that in case of any disarrangement of the hydraulic apparatus the vessel may be guided by it. The advantage of this improvement is that the immense craft can be handled with ease by one man, whereas, if the ordinary wheel and system of steering were used, six men would be required at forms of law. Being in poverty and distress, and wishing "to die in each other's arms," they agreed to take poison together. She died. He recovered, and was convicted of murder .- New York Times.

Another prayer-cure is reported. It is alleged that Mrs. Churchill, of Glens Falls, N. Y., who has been bedridden for a num-N. Y., who has been bedridden for a number of years with nervous prostration, and has been unsuccessfully treated by several physicians, was recently cured through the instrumentality of prayer. She had a picus Quaker lady for a nurse. When her patients had one of her accustomed by sterical fits of crying and physical depression, the nurse would immediately kneel down and seemed to recover in answer to their petistions.

Governor Holliday gave the people of Virginia a message which in point of senti-ment, style, and matter, under existing circumstances, is a credit to the State. He stands just where we expected to flud bime in regard to the financial af-fairs of the Commonwealth. The Rich-mond Dispatch says: The real people of Virginia will appland their Governor for his firmness, consistency, honesty, and patriotism. They can rest in the as-auranee that if barm comes to the State it will not come with his assistance or his consent, nor without his having done all that beomes a true man to shield her honor. "God save the Commonwealth." All which we cordially endorse. We tell the Governor that he will need, before this winter passes, all the courage and firmness which we believe he possesses. He is a Democrat, elected by Democrats upon Democratic platform. Let him resist every encroachment upon the policy of the Conservative party of Virginia, and the people will stand by him .- Lynchburg News.

A portion of these lands are considered among the most valuable in the Valley of the Roanoke. They will be sold in tracts from three to eight hundred acres. Several of the tracts have valuable improvements upon them. That known as "Occonectee," which was the homestead, has upon it a MAG NIFICENT RESIDENCE, and there will be attached to it a large quantity of VERY as "Occonecchee," which was the homestead, has upon it a MAGNIFICENT RESIDENCE, and there will be attached to it a large quantity of VEitY VALUABLE LOW-GROUNDS. At the same time and place I shall sell the interest of the said William Townes, deceased (being one half), in the FERRY across the Roanoke at Clarksville, Va., known as the "CLARKSVILLE FERRY," subject to a lease for two years. And I shall, at the same time and place, sell SEVERAL HOUSES and LOTS, owned by the said William Townes, deceated, in the town of Clarksville. There is now a fair prospect for the completion of the railroad from Keysville to Clarksville, and if completed this property will soon be doubled in value.
